TERRORS OF THE TRENCHES

TOLD BY SOLDIERS

The entries are extremely matter-of-fact.

"May 15th. Turks advance."

"May 16th. One of our officers shot dead."

"May 21st. Nothing doing all day."

Many references to attacks by the Turks follow, the "Royal Scots" are given much credit by the writer for their brave conduct.

"May 27th. Not a minute's sleep for three days and three nights."

"May 28th. We were obliged to move to our reserve trench."

"May 29th. During the afternoon the 8th B. M. R. (8th Battalion Manchester Regiment) were digging in a trench, which they had advanced to during the night, when they were surprised by the Turks. They retired, leaving rifles and equipment behind. We saw the Turks playing with the rifles and bayonets which were left behind. The artillery and infantry peppered them. The 8th Essex were to take back the trench and the 8th who were in the reserve trenches, resting after two nights of advancing and trench digging, had to go and support them. The 8th lost heavily, although the 6th had few casualties. The 8th got the order to advance with fixed bayonets but faked it so we, 6th, would not let them stay in the trench and pushed them over the parapet. Same day a wounded man crawled into our trench and said that a sergeant and four men were the only survivors in a trench. Reinforcements were sent."

"May 30th. We are still in the trenches and are getting very worn and tired."

"May 31st. Turks attacking. Eighth unable to hold their own; one of our platoons to aid. The 8th begin to retire, but his sergeant in charge of the 6th will not allow them to retire."

Then comes the penultimate entry. It is dated:

"June 3rd. Cousin Richard killed—only me left out of the three of us."

And then the last:

"June 4th. Preparing to take hill 709 at the point of the bayonet. Twelve o'clock we charge the Turks at the point of the bayonet."

Private William Sykes, of the 8th Battalion, Manchester Regiment, enlisted as No. 2029, at the age of 17 years and five months had nothing but his letters on his person when found. Most of them were written by his mother, a gentle middle-aged woman, according to her photograph, which the boy carried with him. The letters are addressed to: "Our dear son Will." There is a photograph that shows "Will" among his five sisters and there is another taken when enlisted, showing "Will" as a chubby youngster with a wondering innocent stare in his large eyes. He is clothed in a very smart uniform that is a trifle too large. One can almost sense his endeavor to fill it.

The most remarkable document in the lot is that of a Captain F. I. Lynch, regiment unknown. There is some doubt as to the second initial, which may be intended for a "D" or "J."

His diary is well kept, gives the most minute details, and mirrors a mind constantly under great strain. There are in it many allusions to himself as a "lucky man" or a man with a "charmed life."

"The captain left Rugby on Wednesday, March 17, for Alexandria. The French he met en route he refers as those "funny little Frenchmen." His stay in Egypt is given in the diary in brief notes devoid of interest. On Wednesday, April 21, his ship arrived in Saros Bay. On the same day the Turks fired on the British transport "Manila" with the result that about 70 soldiers jumped overboard, of which number about 60 were drowned according to the entries in Captain Lynch's diary.

Of the many entries a few will be given here in the exact words of Captain Lynch:

"Sunday April 25. I was the sole survivor out of a company of 85 rank and file, the majority of whom were killed outright. In the morning just before we retired, I bandaged a sergeant of the R. M. L. I, whose brains were hanging out of the back of his head. A sniper suddenly fired a couple of shots, wounding again some of the wounded. I took a little time to locate the devil, and fired a shot, bringing him down a hill 200 feet above. I took the belt from his rifle and put it in my pocket for a keepsake. I was very much surprised to find him to be a German. I gave him a fine death, about six or seven bayonet thrusts just to finish him off. I didn't try to kill him." (Sic).

Between April 25 and May 15, Captain Lynch confined himself to entries of little interest. Nothing but military routine is recorded.

"May 15. Turkish guns reached base killing 85 horses and four men, and wounding sixteen men. On the 18th the Turks killed 80 horses and twenty men."

In the same entry Captain Lynch speaks of a deserter who had been caught and as he thinks, was sentenced to death. Four others, he says, have already been sentenced to death, but sentence had been commuted to ten years' penal servitude. Of the four one was a sergeant-corporal and three were privates, belonging to the Munster Fusiliers and the Worcester Regiment. There is little sleep to be had, and the Turks give no quarter, says the entry, nor do they permit the care of the wounded and killed, because the German officers are against this. Captain Lynch writes of his own trench as being filled with dead men and accoutrements.

"May 19. Turks showed great pluck. We like the way the Turks come up to us in great bundles as the Germans. They fall like nine-pins. You can't help hitting the brutes, they simply walk into our bullets."

"Saturday, May 22. Had a very narrow escape. Was unbuttoning my great coat. I bent my head to see what had happened, when a bullet hit me a bang on the top knot. Had I not bent my napper I would have been buried by now. My luck must have been in. The bullet was like a ton of bricks falling on top of me. Fighting at its worst at present. The firing is awful."

"Tuesday, May 24. The Manchester Brigade has been split up and sent to different units for discipline, some of them giving us great laughs; of course, they are only Terriers."

"Saturday, May 29. Turkish shells are dropping terribly near. Found fragments of German, French, English and Turkish made shells. They are

HUGE FORTUNES MADE BY OIL MEN OVER NIGHT

FEW JINNEYS ADDED TO PRICE OF OIL MEANS MILLIONS

Pemeta, Okla., Aug. 7.—The increase in the price of crude oil of 15 cents a barrel, during the past week, including all Oklahoma fields excepting the Healdton, is a big proposition to the holders of stored oil, and it proves that the oil being put in storage, while the price was low, would mean the biggest profits yet made in this wonderful oil field.

The last figures obtainable on the number of 55,000 barrel steel tanks in Oklahoma were those of just a month ago, nearly 1300 tanks of that size. Their total cost, at an average of $13,500 each, amounted to approximately $17,550,000. The increase of but 15 cents a barrel in the price of crude—all within one week—means an increased value on the contents of these 1300 tanks of $17,550,000, making a total of $35,100,000.

Another 5 cent increase in the price of oil would mean an additional $8,775,000 to the owners of the 55,000 barrel tanks. The total 20 cents increase would practically pay for all the 1300 tanks' construction. One week ago the amount of oil stored in 55,000 barrel tanks alone, was worth at 40 cents, the market price, a total of $22,000,000; today it is worth $39,125,000.

Within this oil field district alone there are 700 of the big steel tanks, or a total of 35,000,000 barrels of oil. A 15 cent increase in the market price means an additional value to the owners of this storage of $5,250,000.

The five biggest holders of stored oil in Oklahoma are the Prairie Oil & Gas company with 188 of the 55,000 barrel steel tanks; the Texas company with 174; the Gulf company with 129; the Carter with 622, and the McMan with 629. The increase of 15 cents a barrel in the price of crude means, therefore, an additional value of the Prairie's stored oil of $1,575,000; of the Texas, $1,575,000; of the Gulf, $1,063,000; of the Carter, $1,996,000, and of the McMan, $399,000.

For a sprained ankle, if you will get a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and observe the directions given therewith faithfully, you will recover in much less time than is usually required. Obtainable everywhere.

Just always be drawn between the transient results, temporarily attained through favorable environment and permanent results of selection of the best individuals for continuing the race.

"What would be the result if all apple, plum, corn, melon or petunia seed was indiscriminately planted? Soon worthless mongrels only, having no character and no value for any purpose."

"Only by constant selection of the best can any race ever be improved."

splendidly equipped as regards firearms and ammunition."

"Tuesday June 2. Digging communication trenches all day long, wishing we were in firing line. Getting messed about something awful. Some strong chemicals have been put in the water to discourage men in drinking it. Wrote Addie another letter."

The last entry reads:

"Wednesday, June 3. Called out last night to go to base, but the order was very soon cancelled. We are not sorry to go to our beds."

Captain Lynch must have mistaken some of the blonde Turks, with Georgian and Circassian ancestry, for Germans. An inspection by The Associated Press correspondent of the Sid-el-Bahr Turkish trenches and camps has established that today. There are not more than a score of Germans at the front and that up to May fourth none at all were active there.

No education, no environment of any nature can ever make any appreciable progress, even though these same favorable surroundings may produce through ages a definite but but infinitely slow increment, which by constant repetition becomes slowly available in heredity, but by no means fixed, so that reproduction true to the better type can be depended upon.

"It is becoming increasingly necessary to impress the fact that there are two distinct lines in the improvement of any race; one by favorable environment which brings individuals up to their best possibilities; the other ten thousand times more important and effective—selection of the best individuals through a series of generations. By this means and by this only, can any race of plants, animals or man be permanently or radically improved. When these two lines of action are co-ordinated, all the best qualities of any type are brought forth and fixed—and the field for improvement is limitless."

county about two miles from Collinsville.

Surrounded by a dense thicket it was found with difficulty and this caused officers to miss their quarry.

Cries of "here comes the Tulsa law" was heard and when the sheriff and his deputies arrived nothing was left but the tent and its furniture. "They had time to dump their liquor in the creek or carry part of it away with them," explained Sheriff James Wooley, "and all we could do was to tear up their plant. As we approached we could hear them stampeding through the woods like beef cattle."

"The tent is just across the line from Collinsville and it has been doing a world of business. These men employed at the smelter over there have been going out in droves. Three automobiles have been lying back and forth between the tent and tent as fast as they could go and they have not been able to haul the crowd on payday. Some who could not find room to ride have been walking. As many as ten and a dozen in one bunch have been seen striding their way to the plant, said the officer."

TULSA MILLIONAIRE OIL MEN BUY MEXICO LAND

Houston, Tex., Aug. 7.—One of the biggest deals in oil lands was consummated in Houston, Wednesday, when Jose De Soria sold to Messrs. White & Sinclair of Tulsa, Okla., a large tract in the Panuco fields for a purchase price of over $1,000,000.

The land consists of three tracts, one of 15,000 acres, one of 125 and the other of 12 1/2 acres. Interested in the property with Senor De Soria is George Harmon of Houston. The deal was completed after a test on an 18-acre tract which was only 75 feet from the 100,000-barrel well of La Corona Petroleum company.

Senor De Soria was a banker in Mexico before he entered the oil game and was there considered one of the wealthy men of that country.

HAD PLANNED TO FREE NOTED BANK ROBBER

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 7.—Investigation was being made today by the county attorney into the alleged connection of three men, arrested near Sapulpa Wednesday with the Stroud bank robbery last March. The prisoners, Ralph Russell, Walter Spess and "Boss" Irvin, are held on a charge of robbing a drayman.

They were said to have been on their way to Chandler, where alleged members of the Starr gang are being tried, when arrested, and were reported to have planned to aid in some way Starr on this comrades.

SENATOR OWEN HOPEFUL ON MEX. SITUATION

THINKS GOOD RESULTS WILL FOLLOW LATIN-AMERICAN CONFERENCE

Washington, Aug. 7.—Co-operation of the Latin American countries with the United States in settling the Mexican situation is regarded as one of the most important diplomatic arrangements, touching the western hemisphere, brought about in recent years. It is looked upon not only as reassuring the nations of Central and South America of the friendly disposition of the United States toward them, but will be the means of a closer co-operation on all lines where the interests of the countries touch.

This is the opinion of Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, who several months ago urged at the White House that countries of Latin America be invited to join the United States in its treatment of Mexico. The question was recently discussed by the Cabinet.

"In recent years we have been assuring the countries to the south of us that we had no designs upon their territories and that our prosperity was in a measure dependent upon their prosperity," said Senator Owen who is in Washington for a short time. "Those countries have been inclined to look upon us in an entirely different light. The recent Pan American conference, while a commercial proposition, brought representative men of those nations to our governing city, and they saw that we were friendly and anxious that they should get the most for their efforts, commercially. Expressions to President Wilson during the last few days from delegates and men high in governmental affairs down there bear out the belief that the conference will speedily bear fruit."

"I look for every vestige of suspicious feeling, if such exists, to be wiped out by the co-operation in Mexico, and the administration very properly has accorded to Latin America a share of the responsibility in the bold stroke for humanity."

"The Mexican people, of course, want peace, and want it with a great degree of earnestness as any people on the globe. They have been war torn for a number of years, reduced to nothing commercially, and individually impoverished, to say nothing of the loss in lives. They will welcome anything we can do, and I believe that when the leaders, whose quarrel has practically become a personal one, see those of their own blood are standing for a restoration of order, they will yield to the best diplomatic judgment of this hemisphere and surrender their personal ambitions."
